Mr. Arrington, who at one time made his home here is widely related throughout the State ing a member of the Byrd and Page families of Virginia, and is a nephew of Mrs. John Henry Ingram, of Richmond. The bride is equally prominent socially, and their marriage last evening was a brilliant and important

A large company of guests was present, and the wedding was an al fresco der a noted Norwegian maple on the lovely lawns surrounding the Crittenden estate. Gorgeous dahlias, asters cosmos and gladiolas, massed with chrysanthemums and mountain ferns, formed an effective background for the bridal party at the improvised altar, and the porches were hung with early fall flowers, the autumnal colors predominating. Large baskets of goldenrod and mountain blooms were arranged everywhere, and baskets of the flowers on pedestals marked an aisle, down which the bride and her attendants passed. Dr. T. T.
